Long terms plans for the Allocation Areas

Each redevelopment and economic development area created by the Evansville Redevelopment Commission has a plan associated with it. These plans may be revised and updated from time to time. Plans usually have an implementation date associated and generally the plans are 5-7 year implementation plans. During the implementation of the plans, the Commission will evaluate its work and assess the next steps needed for the continued redevelopment of the individual areas. Adjustments of the plan may be necessary as plans unfold and projects are undertaken. Visit the City of Evansville website for more information at www.evansvillegov.org/dmd

TIF Effect on Overlapping Taxing Districts

The City of Evansville's Redevelopment Commission traditionally uses TIF to pay for project related costs to enhance, upgrade and install public infrastructure and local public improvements.

Costs to achieve such expenditures may include:

- real estate planning, acquisition and development costs
- architectural and engineering fees
- legal, financing, and accounting fees
- advertising and publication costs
- expenses related to the issuance of bonds
- bond payments, debt service and other obligations
- Other eligible expenses as allowed by Indiana Code

TIF Effect on Overlapping Taxing Districts (con't)

Projects the Redevelopment Commission undertake focus on improving the quality of life for residents of Evansville, Vanderburgh County and the surrounding MSA (Metropolitan Statistical Area)

The results of the projects are:

- Job creation and/or retention which often brings new residents into Evansville and the surrounding areas
- New residents who work and live in Vanderburgh County increase the amount of Local Income Tax (LIT) collected and distributed which generates more revenue for all taxing units
- New residents buy homes, pay property taxes, patronize local businesses, which drives up demand that attracts new types of businesses
- Private sector investment increases as a result of redevelopment activities

The ERC has development plans for each of its active redevelopment and allocation areas. These plans can be found on the City of Evansville / Department of Metropolitan Development website. Annually, the Evansville Redevelopment Commission develops a list of priorities for the coming year which is listed on each meeting agenda. The Commission generally meets the 1st and 3rd Tuesdays of each month.
